Playing slightly modified rules and holding fortnightly games, we aim to reduce some of the risks of contact sport while incorporating a longer break between games to aid recovery. Currently we have 15 clubs and 19 teams, spread from Kerang to Wodonga, Gippsland to Meredith and many towns in-between. Our men's competition consists of 10-11 rounds each year, and we are aiming to launch a women's competition in 2024. The women currently play a series of trial games as they continue to generate great interest in many parts of the state. Our League and our clubs are focused on the health and wellbeing aspect of organised sport, and there is a strong emphasis on the socialization, cardio workout and the mental health release benefits from the weekly training sessions. We encourage the participants to bring their children along to the sessions to offer an all-inclusive experience. In 2024 we will put our first dedicated Indigenous team onto the field in a trial game with the intention of having a club compete in the competition in the near future, and our competitors also play for an opportunity to compete for National honours at the AFL Masters National Carnival representing Vic Country. In 2024 we will also look to align with the Vic Metro team in producing an Indigenous side to compete as a standalone side in the National Carnival.

It does hold ACNC status. The Association provides the opportunity for those with an intellectual impairment to play in an Australian rules football league. The league supports 32 teams across Victoria which includes 3 regionals conferences. Players ages stretch from 14-40, and can comprise of mixed gender teams. It would be great to build a bridge to enable juniors leaving Auskick to progress into another program and then feed into a FIDA club once these juniors reach 14 years of age. More recently the Association (which the fundraising funds over many previous years) has been able to fund 2 positions. This was necessary to manage the football operations (1 position) and everything else (1 position). The recent appointment of these positions has allowed the Association to prioritise key attributes to improve awareness and increase participation (although a long way to go). As with most sports, it's no longer just about the game, it's about building skills sets, community engagement, behaviour expectations with the playing group, carers, coaches, supporters and everyone else. Recently we have been focusing on safer social environments. We look forward to organisations that can help expand and fast-track some of the key attributes of an integrated sporting association and enable the Association to operate for many years to come.
